THE mercantile trade of the city during the past week was large, and the bank clearings reached $7,407,620 making an increase over the corresponding week of last year of 31 per cent. When it comes to business Kansas City is always found at the front doing its share of the trade of the country.

This is "Kansas Day" at the Exposition and Kansas City extends a hearty welcome to all visitors from the "sunflower state."

The relations between the state and the City of Kansas are reciprocal. Each one believes in the other and in itself; and in all worthy enterprises the two should go hand in hand.

SENATOR INGALLS is not to be present at the Exposition to-day—"Kansas Day"

but indignantly repudiates the statement that he spoke of Kansas City as "draining" the state of Kansas. And well he may.

The people of Kansas were resentful any such remark as quickly as the people of Kansas City. Kansas City is the metropoliof Kansas, and the Kansas people are constantly attesting their appreciation of this fact.

THE Cattle Growers' convention will be the feature of this week in Kansas City.

Will will be largely attended, and its proceedings will be interesting and important.

The interest of the cattle growers'

has

tre in Kansas City, and it is desirable that the most cordial relations will be promoted among the producers, at Halleckers and the distributors. Much is accomplished to that end by the convention this week.

THE Bank Clearings.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 31.—The following table, compiled from dispatches to the Post from the managers of the leading clearing banks of the United States, shows the change for the week ending October 29, 1887, together with the per cent of increase or decrease as compared with the gross clearing for the corresponding week last year:

as the Christian religion was, and hence martyrdom is not in question. Anarchy is a return to the inchoate violence of barbarism, aided by the implements of destruction which the inventive genius of civilization has devised. It is retrogression. It is a relapse of a diseased condition of society, which has never been cured save by heroic treatment. Mercy is misconstrued to mean weakness and fear by the men who attack social institutions. Who can doubt that SPES or PARSONS, if liberated to-day, would to-morrow preach anarchy again in Haymarket square of Chicago, or that the fatal results of their agitations were enacted? They would spread their anarchist circulars broadcast. They would proclaim anarchy from the rooftops. They would incite incendiarism and bomb-throwing, and find easy victims among men who had been led to believe that society was too weak to punish them.

The petitions for clemency which some of the churches are now indorsing have sprung from mistaken sympathy. An opposition to capital punishment in every case would secure many signatures to these petitions. But the principle of capital punishment is not in issue. If a man should be hanged for the murder of an individual, these men should certainly suffer the extreme penalty of the law for inciting the wholesale slaughter of the officers and guardians of society. The right or wrong of capital punishment in the abstract cannot be determined by this particular case. There are great public abuses—corrupt councils and legislatures, omnivorous "trusts" of all kinds, flagrant outrages on the people—but there are peaceful and lawful ways of curing these evils; they furnish no excuse for the bombs or the bomb-throwers. Professor ADLER of Chicago, says that "society has the right and should quarantine these men just as the bearers of the cholera germs." But as the quarantine is only a partial and untrustworthy protection, if it were possible to exterminate the cholera germs, wouldn't this be done instead of resorting to the makeshift of quarantine?

The criminal quarantine—the penitentiary—is the most insecure of all, for a single demagogue in power may throw open its doors and let loose all the evils of Pandora's box.

It may be that legal technicalities will afford the convicted anarchists an avenue of escape. It may be that false sentiment will bring an effective pressure upon the Governor of Illinois. It may be that all the energy, vigilance and uprightness of the prosecutors and courts in Chicago will go for naught. If so, the fight against anarchy will require more bloodshed than the lives of the seven worthless men who have been convicted of the heinous crime of inciting the slaughter of the police.

MISUNDERSTOOD.

He thought I said yes, but I'm sure I said no. My heart was a-beating, my cheeks were a-wax, I looked on the ground and I thought he would go. He thought I said yes, but I'm sure I said no.

Now what could I do? For he thought I said yes, he would have given me a chance to go. I said no, but he thought I said yes.

The Century.

READING THE ANSWER IN THE STAR.

W. L. G.—All annual reports of the United States armament for the fiscal year, which begins July 1, and ends the 30th of succeeding June. For the year ending June 30, 1886, the imports not including coin and bullion, were $13,569,301 of imported goods that total exports, excepting coin and bullion and including the excess of exports over imports was $43,756.

EDWARD HENRY.—The best way for you to become a civil engineer is to attend a school of engineering in the winter, and work in the field of agriculture in the summer. A prominent engineer in this field is Mr. W. L. G.

Other engineers are employed in many rich countries, and among these brocades are used in countries like France, Italy, Spain, etc.

These brocades have satin figures in striped grounds; these are liked for combining with cloth draperies and trimming with the lighter colored fabrics.

There are also broad stripes made of brocades of different fabric from the corsage to the skirt, and these are used for the sleeves and
